

Agenda Item 14.5:

OIML Bulletin

The OIML Bulletin is a forum for the publication of technical papers, general interest papers and other diverse articles addressing metrological advances in emerging and traditional areas including trade, health, the environment and safety – fields in which the credibility of measurement remains a priority.

In order for the OIML Bulletin to remain topical and that it continues to serve the international metrological community by developing key topics, at the 54th CIML Meeting the concept of Mentor was introduced.

CIML Members or OIML Corresponding Member Representatives may become a Mentor, which involves them volunteering to coordinate individual editions of the OIML Bulletin, and inviting institutes across the globe to consider submitting articles on the chosen theme.

For almost three years since the 54th CIML Meeting, this concept has been actively developed and promoted by the CIML President, the Vice-Presidents, the Editor-in-Chief, and the Editor of the OIML Bulletin. We are pleased to report that the concept of Mentor is now firmly established.

To date, the following themes have been covered in various editions of the OIML Bulletin thanks to the active support and coordination by successive Mentors:

July 2021:
Digital transformation in legal metrology

October 2021:
Legal metrology for health

April 2022
Measurement related to traffic

July 2022
Metrology for a sustainable environment

CIML Members and OIML Corresponding Member Representatives are encouraged to contact the Editor of the OIML Bulletin, Mr Chris Pulham (chris.pulham@oiml.org) to propose themes for future Editions and to offer to become a Mentor.
